

Lanzarote Charco del Palo

Lanzarote is somewhat different from everything else. At first glance it gives a startling impression of a cosmic catastrophe. The National Timanfaya Park resembles a lunar landscape – untouched. However, over the last 30 years there has been a steady program of development and throughout the island are numerous pretty rural villages each with their own character. The tourist attractions have been carefully styled taking the natural beauty and landscape into consideration. The coastal regions can boast some of the most beautiful beaches in the Canaries and several are ideal for naturist use.

Casa del Mar

Situated in possibly the best position in Charco del Palo enjoying Ocean views from the apartments terraces and from the beautiful freshwater, solar heated swimming pool. These apartment type bungalows are always in great demand. Being on the level from the road make them ideal for anyone unsteady on their feet. One bedroom, one bathroom, terrace and kitchen/diner with cooking facilities.

Villa Stropek

The most amazing villa at Charco del Palo. Standing majestically on a high plot with views down to the sea and along the coastline, this villa has its own private pool. Being raised above the road there are some steps to negotiate therefore not ideal for anyone with walking difficulties. Having 3 bedrooms and 3 bathrooms this villa should be used for large groups but quite often it's just used for two persons leaving most of the villa unused. The lounge area is immense and has a very large TV and Hi Fi set off by beautiful murals of crashing waves upon the walls. A marble staircase leads up to the master bedroom with its own bathroom and terrace.

Charco del Palo has been a naturist resort for approximately 30 years. At present there are approximately 350 apartments, bungalows and villas.

To compliment these new homes there are now four restaurants, a commercial centre featuring a supermarket, a car hire outlet, a boutique, a beauty parlor and a late night bar. To enjoy the sunshine there is a swimming pool built into the rocks with sunbathing terraces, a sandy cove also with terraces and a rocky cove with stainless steel steps leading into crystal clear waters. For walkers, it is possible to walk nude through the sand dunes for up to two miles in the direction towards Arrieta which is a great fishing village with several good fish restaurants. Local attractions include the Cactus Gardens and the caves of Jameos del Agua and the Green Caves (Cuevas de los Verdes). A little further north is the "Mirador del Rio", a fantastic view-point overlooking the island of Graciosa.

Casa Blanca

A detached villa in a quiet location standing in a good size plot. Two bedrooms, two bathrooms / shower. Well equipped kitchen with hob, fridge, toaster, coffee maker etc. Spacious lounge / dining room with TV, radio etc. Sun terrace upstairs from master bedroom with sea views. Famara

Famara is very special place on Lanzarote, a complete opposite to the mass tourism of the sprawling resorts on the East coast with thousands of people crowding the pavements looking at cheap souvenir shops and restaurants.

Famara is a village of fishermen and farmers. It also has probably the largest beach on the island backed by a 2000-foot mountain range, three off shore islands and a village atmosphere with about seven restaurants and four supermarkets.

The beach is well used by surfers who come to ride some of the best waves on the island. The mountain is used by the courageous pilots on hang-gliders who soar high above the village for hours at a time only to land sometimes on the beach or in a nearby field. But the beauty of Famara lies in the 9 kilometer long sandy beach where you can be as dressed or undressed as you please. The size of beach dictates that it is never crowded and you will find most naturist's at the beach edge in the stone built Zoco's which shelter the occupants from the breeze. The beach side bungalows and villas are very popular with some having their very own heated swimming pools. The village is a short stroll across the beach.

- ◆ Lanzarote's largest clothes optional beach
- ◆ Selection of villas, some with private heated pools
- ◆ Standard one, two and three bedroomed bungalows with large communal (textile) swimming pool
- ◆ On-site restaurant and super-market
- ◆ 10 minutes stroll to the fishing village of Famara with good selection of local restaurants, community centre and super-markets
