

Tenerife

Villa Las Palmeras

Tenerife is the largest of the Canary islands and offers a wide variety of scenery in the different regions. Mount Teide, a 3718m high mountain is the highest point in Spain. The northern part of the island offers lush greenery whilst the southern regions, although quite arid offer wonderful beaches and popular tourist spots.

El Medano

El Medano is a small holiday resort town, on the south coast of the island of Tenerife, 7 km from the southern airport and 20 km from the busy resorts and beaches of Los Cristianos and Las Americas.

El Medano Beaches

There are two beaches in El Medano that are suitable for naturist use. Montana Pelada beach is a small sheltered cove, this is very popular with naturist and is within walking distance of many of the villas and apartments. From the beach, it is a five minute drive or 20 minute stroll to the town centre. The larger beach Montana Roja (red mountain), also very popular with naturists, is a short drive from the village. The beach at Montana Roja is approached via a large car park which leads to a beach cafe. The naturist beach is beyond the cafe to the left hand side of the red rock. Along the El Medano seafront and around the town square there are numerous small shops, restaurants and bars. El Medano benefits from all year round sunshine with few cloudy days and very little rainfall. Due to distances between beaches and the town centre, a car is recommended.
